

A BIG RIVER.

The Ohio Southern Tributaries
Are All Flooded.

Big Run of Coal From Pittsburgh and Kanawha Promised.

The Head Waters of the Monongahela
River Registers Sixteen Feet, and Rising—
The Kanawha River Rising Rapidly—the Big Sandy on a High.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—Unless severely cold weather sets in immediately, a condition not at all assured, a big river is promised in the Ohio the coming week. The very heavy rain-storm which has passed eastward across the entire section of country drained by the southern tributaries of the Ohio has resulted in a perfect flood in all those streams. As a consequence, an immense volume of water will be poured into the Ohio within the next few days.

At the headwaters of the Monongahela river, a stage of 16 feet and rising was reported. This should result in at least twelve feet of water at Pittsburgh, and the sending north of all the coal now loaded up that stream, which will likely aggregate at least seven or eight million bushels. It is the first time in a year that there has been a rise to speak of in that stream. Others having come almost entirely from the Allegheny. At Charleston, W. Va., on the Kanawha river, a rise of 11½ feet has occurred during the twenty-four hours ending Saturday evening, and a still greater rise was assured, as the river was still rising at the headwaters of the stream. At Pikeville, Ky., the headwaters of the Big Sandy river, where for most of the year "pushboats" drawing only four to six inches, find navigation difficult, a stage of 30 feet was reported Saturday night and still rising. Kentucky river was also on a rampage, a rise of 11 feet during the day being reported at Frankfort. One and two days of heavy rain in all this section has been followed by heavy snow falls, which for the most part melted as fast as it fell Sunday. With snow already in the mountains in some quarters, the big rise may be easily understood.

The Ohio has been at a very modest stage for almost a year now, and since the high water of late last winter, following the disastrous ice break-up, there has hardly been sufficient water in the Ohio here since that time to cause the removal of goods stored on the wharf close to the water's edge. While nothing like a flood is anticipated from the present big outpouring from the southern tributaries, the river will probably exceed any figures heretofore reached within the past twelve months.

Seven Murders Since New Year's.
PITTSBURGH, Kan., Feb. 5.—The seventh murder in this vicinity since January 1 was committed Saturday night, a woman named Allester being the latest victim. She went to a saloon in the northeast part of the town kept by a Frenchman named Edward Bouissant, and there the murder was committed. Sunday morning an ore-hauler saw a body lying in a hollow by the Missouri Pacific track, and an investigation revealed that it was terribly mutilated. Bouissant, his wife and son are in jail, charged with the crime. Tracks in the snow were found leading from Bouissant's saloon to the place where the body was found.

A Youthful Bigamist.
RACINE, Wis., Feb. 5.—Frank Cone has just been sentenced to one year in the penitentiary for bigamy. Cone's case has attracted considerable attention from a legal standpoint, from the fact that when he married his first wife he was but seventeen years old. After living with her for two years they separated and a few years afterward he again married. On account of his being under age when first married the judge was unable to decide whether he could be guilty of bigamy, and he submitted the case to the supreme court. That court held that his being a minor did not modify the offense.

SILVER CREEK, Neb., Feb. 5.—Three boys, the oldest but fourteen years of age, while out hunting Sunday afternoon, got excited over the sight of a mink, and in the scramble to get a shot at it, Tim Wilson shot his brother Bird in the neck, killing him instantly. WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The silver convention which was to have been held at Des Moines, Ia., February 22 and 23, has been postponed to March 21 and 22, on account of the first date selected conflicting with the meeting of the Pan-American Bi-metal League of San Francisco, and other meetings previously arranged.

BROKE ICE.

Nearly Two Hundred Colored Converts
Baptized in a Canal.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 5.—The extraordinary spectacle of an outdoor baptism in midwinter was witnessed Sunday along the banks of the canal. The converts, numbering nearly two hundred, were the fruits of a revival in the colored Baptist church in the west end. The ice was cut away so that the candidates could be led down into the water, and for several hours the enthusiasts lined the banks, shouting, singing and praying. Occasionally a timid convert would shiver and hesitate, as the icy cold water touched his quivering flesh, but the cry of the good old brethren and sisters, "Get religion; get the true faith and the water will be warm," re-enforced their resolution and there was no further hesitation.

HELEN GOULD

Has a Chance To Discipline One of Her Charitable Institutions.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Feb. 5.—Charges of brutal treatment are made against Superintendent Pierce, of the Westchester Orphan's home, of this city, an institution which receives a large share of its support from Miss Helen Gould. Theresa Zee, a 16-year-old girl, fled from the place Thursday night to a farm house, where she asked protection. She was thinly clad and showed bruises upon her shoulders, the effects, she said, of brutal treatment. It is said that one of the boys who once ran away from the place to escape its terrors, now has a ball and chain fastened to one of his legs as a warning to others. It is likely the grand jury will take action if the present inquiry fails of correcting the alleged evils.

STABBED HIS PA.

Because the "Latter Scolded" Him For Crap-Shooting.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 5.—George R. Swift, a prominent citizen, living near Fredonia post office, in this county, was fatally stabbed near the heart by his son, Joseph R. Swift, a man aged about 25. The affray took place while a dance was in progress at the Swift residence.

Joseph Swift was drinking at the time, and it is said became incensed at his father because the latter gave him a friendly lecture about shooting craps out in the woods. After the cutting young Swift is reported as having expressed the wish that he had killed his father, saying that he tried to do so. When arrested Swift had a razor on his person. He was brought here and lodged in jail.

Hung to a Rafter.

BOONSBURG, Ind., Feb. 5.—Samuel Hesson, a wealthy farmer living near Maxenkuck, southwest of here, was found dead, hanging from a rafter in his barn. No cause can be assigned for the act, but it is supposed that he hung himself while in a state of insanity. His brother hung himself in the same manner two years ago. He leaves a wife and four children.

Another Ship Canal.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Feb. 5.—The Lake St. Clair and Erie Ship Canal Co., capital $250,000, was organized in this city. The idea of the company is to build a canal from Lake St. Clair to Lake Erie, thus avoiding the Lime Kiln crossings and other dangerous places, and shortening the route to Buffalo by one hundred miles.

They Shot a Mouse.

BOWLING GREEN, O., Feb. 5.—Nearly 1,000 men turned out Saturday to take part in the fox hunt. The circle comprised nearly two townships and when they came to the center they discovered that the foxes in that section had been too shy to get caught in their snare. The only game caught by any of the hunters was a field mouse.

BOY SHOT.

By the Rioting Miners at Acme, W. Va.

A Howling Mob Armed With Rifles
and Bad Whisky

Marched on the Men at the Mines and Fired at a Lad Who Was a Spectator
—Two of the Mob Were Shot and Seriously Wounded.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 5.—The miners at the Montgomery mines, who are out on a strike, have endeavored to induce the men employed by the Stevens Coal Co. at Acme to quit work. The latter, however, refused to go out, and the Montgomery men now use force to close the Acme mines.

The sheriff was sent up there Friday night to quell the disturbance. The sheriff's posse returned from Acme, Saturday morning. Friday night 300 or 400 striking miners came down from Montgomery and other points. A train on a branch line up the creek took them within three miles of Acme, where they got off and marched up to the company's store, all armed with rifles, muskets, pistols, etc., drunk and shouting: "Put out the lights."

When they got a quarter of a mile beyond the store John Foster, a fourteen-year-old son of Miner Mark Foster, was standing in his own door with a lantern. The mob cried, "Out with that light!" and fired twelve or fifteen shots at the boy, who fell, shot through the groin. He may die. The strikers then cut the telephone wires, and no news could be sent from Acme, which is fifteen miles from a telegraph station.

The sheriff's posse came up on the same train and found the Stevens miners gathered at the store, armed and prepared to resist the mob. A few words from the sheriff and the crowd quietly disappeared.

Deputy Sheriff Chase then went down to meet the mob, who were advancing, firing and cursing. Chase was grabbed by the strikers and made to tell his name.

When they discovered he was a sheriff they turned him loose. He reported to sheriff Silman that the men were ugly and coming right on. The posse fired sixty shots into the air to alarm the mob, thirty-five of whom turned and fled. The rest slowly retired, then pressed forward again. Deputy Chase, who knows the miners, stepped out and said the first man who came past a certain line would be shot, unless he came unarmed, showed his face and told his name.

The mob refused to let their faces be seen or to give their names. Mr. Stevens came out with a Winchester and told the men they could have the schoolhouse for the night, and he would let his men off Saturday to hold a conference.

He sent several boxes of crackers down to the men at the schoolhouse. This was at midnight, and it was pouring down rain. The men went to the schoolhouse, but hearing that Foster was likely to die, got scared and sent a committee to Stevens, saying if he would furnish them an engine and cars they would go home.

This was done, and by 1 a. m. the entire crowd left, picking up their men along the route.

They say the Stevens miners must stop work, but the Stevens men stand by the operators, and are satisfied. They will not stop.

Two of the mob were shot, one through the arm and the other through the chin.

GOD IN THE CONSTITUTION.

A Considerable Contention Is Promised Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Congress seems destined to have an ecclesiastical fray precipitated by a resolution which Senator Frye and Representative Morse of Massachusetts have brought in to secure recognition of the Deity in the constitution of the United States. Interested members are being deluged with missives of commendation and protest upon the project.

The trouble seems to lie not so much in the purpose of the resolution set forth in its title as in that clause of it which embodies the orthodox evangelical belief in Jesus Christ. This is certain to stir the opposition of Hebrew citizens and others and a foretaste of that opposition is already making itself known.

Some letters have been received from clergymen who desire to address the committee against the resolution. None of the ministers who have intervened on either side are men of national reputation. A delegation of church people is here to advocate the resolution. They are: Rev. J. Robinson, Dr. McAllister and Rev. D. C. Martin, of Allegheny, Pa.; T. P. Stevenson, of Philadelphia, and Rev. H. H. George, of Beaver Falls, Pa.

Dissatisfied, But Will Not Secede.
TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 5.—There is no truth whatever in the report that the knights of labor in Ontario threaten to secede from the general assembly. "At the last meeting the report of our representatives to the general assembly at Philadelphia was read. Certainly much dissatisfaction was expressed at portions of the report, some members even saying that if these were true, then some men were in authority who did not know their business." Still, secession was never hinted at.

The Pumps Started.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 5.—The two 500 horse power pumps in Mercer county to force gas through the mains have been started. As a result, Springfield, Dayton, Troy, Piqua, etc., have sufficient pressure. Vice President Foss said that it will be about four years before connection is made with the Indiana fields.

Cardinal Suffered Death.

ROME, Feb. 5.—Cardinal Luigi Serafini, bishop of Sabina, is dead. He was born at Magliano, June 7, 1865.

HATCH'S OPTION.

The Missouriian Will Introduce His Bill
Again.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative Hatch, of Missouri, will introduce his new anti-option bill in the house in a few days. There will then ensue a fight over the question of its reference. Mr. Hatch being anxious that it shall be referred to the committee on agriculture, instead of to the ways and means committee. He believes that he will be successful in his desires, and he also has strong hopes that the bill will pass.

"I am very glad that it did not pass during the last congress," said he, "for it would have been made the scapegoat for the hard times. As it is, the Sherman law has been made to bear the burden. The delay, too, has given me an opportunity to detect unsatisfactory details in the old bill, and I think I have a measure that will command universal support. It distinctly protects the legitimate sales, while taxing those establishments where illegitimate selling is done. In other words, if a sale is made, and the article sold is not delivered in a certain time, then the tax is imposed."

"I have been in conference with the commissioner of internal revenue and with other officers of the treasury department, and the bill which will be presented will be one that can be administered. The exchanges of the country are now ready to support the new bill, and some of them have gone so far as to suggest that they are ready to pay a tax, say $10 per head, upon their membership. This will bring them into closer relations with the government and will tend to the protection of their rights and privileges. I feel certain that the bill will pass the house, and I feel equally sure that the president will sign it."

ANOTHER CONFESSION.

An Apron Was Used to Smother Ethel
Wratten, Says Murderer Stone.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Feb. 5.—This city is again horror-stricken with another one of James E. Stone's confessions of the Wratten murder. A few days ago Stone's father, wife and children visited him at the Jeffersonville state prison to bid him a last farewell.

Stone's father now tells of a most shocking and cold-blooded crime of which his son claims he is guilty.

Little 13-year-old Ethel, the only one of the family who was not killed instantly, and who it was thought would recover, was taken to a neighbor's immediately after the murder. Everything was done to save her life.

A few days after, Murderer Stone, then not suspected, went to where Ethel was being cared for and took a seat near the bedside. At dinner time he was asked to take dinner with the family, but refused, saying he would stay and fan the little sufferer. While the family were at dinner he placed an apron over her nose and mouth and smothered the unconscious child to death.

This confession is a surprise to every one, as none had even dreamed of the child coming to her death in this manner. He also told his aged father he would not hang on the day set, and intimated that at the eleventh hour he would tell who assisted him in the horrible massacre, and would be wanted as a witness.

MELLO'S PLANS.

The Chief Insurgent Still Very Actively at Work.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The Herald's Rio Janeiro correspondent, writing under date of January 25, says:

Admiral Mello is now organizing a provisional government in the state of Parana. The insurgents are preparing to enter San Paulo. If they succeed in this they will have practical possession of all Brazilian territory south of Rio Janeiro. They will then be prepared to march on the capital by land.

Da Gama has news of the capture of Cantaba by the insurgent forces under Gumerinde Saraliva. He took nine field guns and much ammunition. Mello still held Paranaqua.

The Herald correspondent had an interview with Capt. Fanson aboard the Aquidaban. He said that he saw little signs of an armistice, as the revolutionists could accept nothing short of the retirement of President Peixoto, the complete abolition of military rule and the delivery of the government into the hands of a civil junta to administer affairs pending the election.

The restoration of the constitutional status and reorganization of a responsible parliamentary government with a civilian as first president were also indispensable conditions for the termination of the revolution. They have no hope of effecting a compromise.

Peixoto's friends, Capt. Fanson said, will kill him before they will allow him to desert them by resigning in favor of any civilian.

As to President Dole's Health.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—In regard to a San Francisco dispatch to the effect that President Dole of the provisional government of Hawaii would be forced to resign his position on account of ill health, Minister Thurston said that he had no information on the subject, but from what he knew of Mr. Dole's condition he did not credit the report in the least. Mr. Dole's health had been poor some time, he said, but his illness was not of the nature mentioned in the dispatch and would not, in the minister's judgment, force the president to resign.

Democratic Club Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Chairman Wm. L. Wilson, of the ways and means committee, who is also chairman of the national association of democratic clubs, has called a meeting of the latter committee, to be held at the Ebbitt house, Washington, on the 8th of February. Mr. Wilson states that the meeting will be a very important one and insists that every member be present.

MORE TROUBLE.

All Parties For Once Agree in Questioning

The Authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to Use the Proceeds

Of the Bonds for Any Purpose Other Than to Replenish the Gold Reserve—Bond Buyers Paying for Their Purchases With Bank Notes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Every sign indicates that the administration is wading deeper and deeper into water which threatens to engulf it upon the bond question. Republicans, democrats and populists are for once agreed in congress in questioning and even disputing the authority of the secretary of the treasury to use the proceeds of his first bond sale for any purpose other than to replenish the $100,000,000 gold reserve.

When Secretary Carlisle invaded the gold reserve in order to pay current expenses of the government he violated law, in the opinion of the best financial experts. The only excuse that has been pleaded by the administration for this is that the secretary acted under the pressure of necessity in order to maintain the credit of the government when congress was not in session. It was also urged in his defense that the depletion of the gold reserve was caused by a conspiracy to ship gold abroad in order to force an issue of bonds for the benefit of the money lenders of the east. Now, however, congress is in session, and has been made, officially, aware of the condition of the treasury.

Another complication is caused by the fact, as announced officially Sunday morning, that many of the buyers of bonds have tendered in payment thereof United States notes instead of gold. If the secretary accepts greenbacks in lieu of gold, which he advertised for, his currency balance will be increased and the gold reserve will be slightly benefited. The only plea that can be made for the acceptance of United States notes instead of gold is that holders of greenbacks can take them to the sub-treasury in New York and demand gold for them at any time, thus the government would be paying out of the reserve for the redemption of United States notes all that it may receive in limited quantities in gold obtained from the sale of bonds. If this point could be overlooked there is no doubt that Secretary Carlisle would prefer to receive United States notes instead of gold, because there can be no question of his right to pay the obligations of the government in greenbacks, while there is every doubt of his right to use gold intended for the reserve fund until that fund shall have passed the $100,000,000 mark. This particular feature of the bond transaction, here for the first time set forth, will play an important part in the debate in the senate during this week.

The train hands made resistance, and a severe battle was fought. Seven arrests have been made.

Desperate Convicts Escape.

VIRGINIA, Ill., Feb. 5.—Jailor Alex. Robinson, of the county jail, went into the corridor surrounding the cells, with the evening meal, and as he stepped inside the grated door, he was overpowered by three desperate characters, James Bennett and John Garrett, charged with highway robbery at Beardstown, and Joseph Brown, a forger. All three made their escape. The arrival of assistance prevented some other prisoners from making their escape.
